

Need to travel out of province this summer or fall?

Your USW 8782 Retiree Benefits Trust Travel Insurance has you covered

Although travelling outside of Canada is not covered during the ongoing Government of Canada travel advisory, Royal Sun Alliance (RSA) has confirmed that your travel insurance is in effect if you travel to another province within Canada.

If you happen to contract COVID-19 while you are out of the province, you will be covered in the same way that any other sudden or unforeseen illness would be treated. However, it is important to note that the pre-existing clause would apply, so if you already had COVID-19, travelled, then needed to be hospitalized in another province, you would not be covered. Because of this, getting tested before your departure date is recommended.

Before you travel: Check current inter-provincial travel guidelines

We strongly encourage you to check the current inter-provincial travel measures before you depart, as the guidelines continue to change and there are different measures in place for different provinces/territories.

Depending where you're coming from – or going to – the rules may require a period of self-isolation, or other measures which could affect your travel plans.
